

SOCIAL STUDIES

Build geographic confidence with just minutes a day.

Daily Geography Practice offers a steady, bite-sized approach to geography that fits smoothly into a homeschooling rhythm. Each week, students tackle two short geography questions per day, culminating in a weekly “challenge” question. Because the format is predictable and lessons are brief, many families find it easy to include consistently—even on busy weeks. On the flip side, it’s not a deep, narrative-rich history program. If you like explorations with stories, you may want to supplement with hands-on or reading-based materials.

Curriculum Overview

- 36 weekly units per school year
- Two geography questions per day, Monday–Friday
- Difficulty ramps through the week; includes a weekly “challenge” question
- Each unit includes: teacher overview + answer key, vocabulary list, map page, question pages
- A 10-page reproducible geography glossary is included
- Aligned with National Geography Standards; supports any geography or social studies curriculum

Why Families Like It

Parents like the short, consistent lessons that keep geography on track without becoming overwhelming. The weekly challenge adds variety, and the program provides steady coverage with very little prep.
